After more than two years of preparation, the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development (UNCED), or Earth Summit, took place June 3-14 in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. One hundred seventy countries were officially represented at the biggest event ever sponsored by the United Nations. One hundred eighteen heads of state attended the meeting, whose goal was to create a new framework (the Earth Charter), comprehensive agenda (Agenda 21), and series of agreements that would protect the environment while at the same time provide the means for human beings to develop fully.

For those of us who work to protect animals through changing international policies, UNCED was a unique opportunity. Never before had the world's political leaders seriously considered a declaration that would recognize the intrinsic value of animals and nature, as well as agendas and treaties that would implement a life-affirming ethic. We were hopeful that the United Nations would take significant steps to protect animals and the Earth, following the lead of its own recent statements and those of other international groups.

Unfortunately, however, concern for the life and beauty of our planet did not prevail in the deliberations. The Earth Charter, formally titled the Rio Declaration on Environment and Development, opens with the assertion that “human beings are at the center of concerns for sustainable development.” In Agenda 21 and various treaties, opportunities for protecting species or habitats were bypassed or ignored. Both the reality and the rhetoric of caring for animals and the Earth were edited out of final versions, as northern, developed countries and southern, developing countries tried to cut deals that would give each the maximum share of natural resources.

Paul G. Irwin is president of The HSUS.
Amidst representatives of indigenous peoples, Sen. Albert Gore speaks in Rio. The HSUS sponsored the IPMC on behalf of CRLE, EarthKind, and HSI.

Despite the disregard for animals demonstrated at UNCED, the meeting represented a giant step forward in creating a global framework to protect animals and the Earth.

Sen. Albert Gore

The Global Humane Family at Rio

The Global Forum included representatives of intergovernmental organizations, Humane Society International (HSI), the Center for Responsible Tourism (CRLE), EarthKind, the National Association for Humane and Environmental Education, and the United Nations' participation with the World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA) and others—22,000 individuals, representing 9,000 nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) from around the world, registered at the Global Forum. Included were religious organizations, cultural associations, women's alliances, animal-protection organizations, native environmental activists, indigenous peoples, and international educators. More than 650 booths were set up at Flamengo Park, interspersed with tents where speeches and workshops were held.

CRLE's Ashley Henry joins Richard Clugston in the HSUS booth, shared with EarthKind, HSI, CRLE, and WSFA, in Flamengo Park.

CRLE staff participated in the parliamentary Earth Summit, held in Rio June 5-7 as a continuation of meetings begun in previous years in Oxford (England) and Moscow. This conference of members of the world's parliaments included spiritual leaders, scientists, journalists, artists, and business leaders. His Holiness The Dalai Lama, Senator Gore, Archbishop Helder Camara of Brazil, and Kenyan Greenbelt Movement leader Wangari Maathai were among the participants.

Despite the disregard for animals demonstrated at UNCED, the meeting represented a giant step forward in creating a global framework to protect animals and the Earth.

Sen. Albert Gore

The Global Forum included representatives of intergovernmental organizations, Humane Society International (HSI), the Center for Responsible Tourism (CRLE), EarthKind, the National Association for Humane and Environmental Education, and the United Nations' participation with the World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA) and others—22,000 individuals, representing 9,000 nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) from around the world, registered at the Global Forum. Included were religious organizations, cultural associations, women's alliances, animal-protection organizations, native environmental activists, indigenous peoples, and international educators. More than 650 booths were set up at Flamengo Park, interspersed with tents where speeches and workshops were held.

CRLE's Ashley Henry joins Richard Clugston in the HSUS booth, shared with EarthKind, HSI, CRLE, and WSFA, in Flamengo Park.

CRLE staff participated in the parliamentary Earth Summit, held in Rio June 5-7 as a continuation of meetings begun in previous years in Oxford (England) and Moscow. This conference of members of the world's parliaments included spiritual leaders, scientists, journalists, artists, and business leaders. His Holiness The Dalai Lama, Senator Gore, Archbishop Helder Camara of Brazil, and Kenyan Greenbelt Movement leader Wangari Maathai were among the participants.

Despite the disregard for animals demonstrated at UNCED, the meeting represented a giant step forward in creating a global framework to protect animals and the Earth.

Sen. Albert Gore

The Global Forum included representatives of intergovernmental organizations, Humane Society International (HSI), the Center for Responsible Tourism (CRLE), EarthKind, the National Association for Humane and Environmental Education, and the United Nations' participation with the World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA) and others—22,000 individuals, representing 9,000 nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) from around the world, registered at the Global Forum. Included were religious organizations, cultural associations, women's alliances, animal-protection organizations, native environmental activists, indigenous peoples, and international educators. More than 650 booths were set up at Flamengo Park, interspersed with tents where speeches and workshops were held.

CRLE's Ashley Henry joins Richard Clugston in the HSUS booth, shared with EarthKind, HSI, CRLE, and WSFA, in Flamengo Park.

CRLE staff participated in the parliamentary Earth Summit, held in Rio June 5-7 as a continuation of meetings begun in previous years in Oxford (England) and Moscow. This conference of members of the world's parliaments included spiritual leaders, scientists, journalists, artists, and business leaders. His Holiness The Dalai Lama, Senator Gore, Archbishop Helder Camara of Brazil, and Kenyan Greenbelt Movement leader Wangari Maathai were among the participants.

Despite the disregard for animals demonstrated at UNCED, the meeting represented a giant step forward in creating a global framework to protect animals and the Earth.

Sen. Albert Gore

The Global Forum included representatives of intergovernmental organizations, Humane Society International (HSI), the Center for Responsible Tourism (CRLE), EarthKind, the National Association for Humane and Environmental Education, and the United Nations' participation with the World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA) and others—22,000 individuals, representing 9,000 nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) from around the world, registered at the Global Forum. Included were religious organizations, cultural associations, women's alliances, animal-protection organizations, native environmental activists, indigenous peoples, and international educators. More than 650 booths were set up at Flamengo Park, interspersed with tents where speeches and workshops were held.

CRLE's Ashley Henry joins Richard Clugston in the HSUS booth, shared with EarthKind, HSI, CRLE, and WSFA, in Flamengo Park.

CRLE staff participated in the parliamentary Earth Summit, held in Rio June 5-7 as a continuation of meetings begun in previous years in Oxford (England) and Moscow. This conference of members of the world's parliaments included spiritual leaders, scientists, journalists, artists, and business leaders. His Holiness The Dalai Lama, Senator Gore, Archbishop Helder Camara of Brazil, and Kenyan Greenbelt Movement leader Wangari Maathai were among the participants.

Despite the disregard for animals demonstrated at UNCED, the meeting represented a giant step forward in creating a global framework to protect animals and the Earth.

Sen. Albert Gore

The Global Forum included representatives of intergovernmental organizations, Humane Society International (HSI), the Center for Responsible Tourism (CRLE), EarthKind, the National Association for Humane and Environmental Education, and the United Nations' participation with the World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA) and others—22,000 individuals, representing 9,000 nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) from around the world, registered at the Global Forum. Included were religious organizations, cultural associations, women's alliances, animal-protection organizations, native environmental activists, indigenous peoples, and international educators. More than 650 booths were set up at Flamengo Park, interspersed with tents where speeches and workshops were held.

CRLE's Ashley Henry joins Richard Clugston in the HSUS booth, shared with EarthKind, HSI, CRLE, and WSFA, in Flamengo Park.

CRLE staff participated in the parliamentary Earth Summit, held in Rio June 5-7 as a continuation of meetings begun in previous years in Oxford (England) and Moscow. This conference of members of the world's parliaments included spiritual leaders, scientists, journalists, artists, and business leaders. His Holiness The Dalai Lama, Senator Gore, Archbishop Helder Camara of Brazil, and Kenyan Greenbelt Movement leader Wangari Maathai were among the participants.

Despite the disregard for animals demonstrated at UNCED, the meeting represented a giant step forward in creating a global framework to protect animals and the Earth.

Sen. Albert Gore

The Global Forum included representatives of intergovernmental organizations, Humane Society International (HSI), the Center for Responsible Tourism (CRLE), EarthKind, the National Association for Humane and Environmental Education, and the United Nations' participation with the World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA) and others—22,000 individuals, representing 9,000 nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) from around the world, registered at the Global Forum. Included were religious organizations, cultural associations, women's alliances, animal-protection organizations, native environmental activists, indigenous peoples, and international educators. More than 650 booths were set up at Flamengo Park, interspersed with tents where speeches and workshops were held.

CRLE's Ashley Henry joins Richard Clugston in the HSUS booth, shared with EarthKind, HSI, CRLE, and WSFA, in Flamengo Park.

CRLE staff participated in the parliamentary Earth Summit, held in Rio June 5-7 as a continuation of meetings begun in previous years in Oxford (England) and Moscow. This conference of members of the world's parliaments included spiritual leaders, scientists, journalists, artists, and business leaders. His Holiness The Dalai Lama, Senator Gore, Archbishop Helder Camara of Brazil, and Kenyan Greenbelt Movement leader Wangari Maathai were among the participants.

Despite the disregard for animals demonstrated at UNCED, the meeting represented a giant step forward in creating a global framework to protect animals and the Earth.

Sen. Albert Gore

The Global Forum included representatives of intergovernmental organizations, Humane Society International (HSI), the Center for Responsible Tourism (CRLE), EarthKind, the National Association for Humane and Environmental Education, and the United Nations' participation with the World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA) and others—22,000 individuals, representing 9,000 nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) from around the world, registered at the Global Forum. Included were religious organizations, cultural associations, women's alliances, animal-protection organizations, native environmental activists, indigenous peoples, and international educators. More than 650 booths were set up at Flamengo Park, interspersed with tents where speeches and workshops were held.

CRLE's Ashley Henry joins Richard Clugston in the HSUS booth, shared with EarthKind, HSI, CRLE, and WSFA, in Flamengo Park.

CRLE staff participated in the parliamentary Earth Summit, held in Rio June 5-7 as a continuation of meetings begun in previous years in Oxford (England) and Moscow. This conference of members of the world's parliaments included spiritual leaders, scientists, journalists, artists, and business leaders. His Holiness The Dalai Lama, Senator Gore, Archbishop Helder Camara of Brazil, and Kenyan Greenbelt Movement leader Wangari Maathai were among the participants.