My husband and I live on 3 acres with natural woodland, three ponds and a creek. We get a lot of wildlife coming through—bears, opossums, chipmunks, foxes and lots of birds. I do whatever I can to make them feel welcome. We’ve got native plants for food and cover. We don’t use pesticides. I keep the bird feeders full. And everyone has clean water to drink year-round.

On my back deck, I’ve created a bird studio with a birdbath and feeders hanging from a large potted ficus tree. I spread a homemade suet-type mixture into a feeder that my husband made by drilling holes in a log. It hangs from a hook and attracts all kinds of birds. It’s what the male downy and red-bellied woodpeckers are clinging to in this picture.

My daughter recently wrote in a Mother’s Day card, “Mom, everybody says I look like my dad. But my love for nature comes from you.” I thought, this is exactly what I want out of life, to pass along one of my greatest loves.

— JANET FURLONG, CULPEPER, VIRGINIA

SUBMIT YOUR SHOT

Do you have an inspiring photo of a favorite pet, rescued farm animal or wild animal? Send it to us for possible publication in All Animals or at humansociety.org/allanimals, along with an explanation of 250 words or fewer about why it’s meaningful to you. Photos should be at least 300 dpi at a size of 8-by-10” and at least 2 MB.

To upload your photo and information, visit humansociety.org/yourbestshot.

Send hard copy submissions to All Animals—Your Best Shot, The HSUS, 2100 L St., N.W., Washington, DC 20037. (Hard copies cannot be returned.)